NEW AMERICAN HIGH SCHOOL

In 2000 the U.S Department of Education and the National Association of Secondary School Principals (NASSP) named Leland High School a New American High School, a school on the leading edge of reform and meeting the 21st century education strategies help all students acquire strong academic skills, succeed in college and prepare for careers in an ever-changing technological and increasingly competitive global economy. The strategies of NAHS have become Leland's commitment and the basis of the school's organizational and accountability structure.

CALIFORNIA DISTINGUISHED SCHOOL

In 2002, Leland High School was named a California Distinguished School and received a special emphasis award for Career and Technical Education. As stated by Dr. Eileen Warren, coordinator of state and national awards, "Leland High School distinguishes itself in two interrelated ways. First, it has adopted research-based strategies as its basis for school improvement. Second, parents, students and teachers are active members of school committees based on each of the adopted strategies. This continuous improvement model has been nationally recognized by the U.S. Department of Education through the New American High Schools initiative and validated by the Western Association of Schools and Colleges."
